No warning in collapse

Two people critically injured after 3rd-floor balcony gives way

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

Shawna Bickford said there was no warning.

"I didn't hear anything," Bickford, 19, said yesterday.

Bickford was one of six people who plunged when the third-floor balcony outside of an apartment unit at 82 Beausoleil Dr. suddenly collapsed late Saturday night, critically injuring two people.

Bickford said she and five others were enjoying music and a breath of fresh air outside their friend Vickie Perreault's home when the balcony gave way.

Bickford said she fell onto the second-floor balcony, spraining her arm, which was in a sling yesterday as she stood outside the building surveying the damage.

Two of the women weren't so lucky. Martine D'Aragon and Heidi Perras, both 20, of Quebec, remained in critical condition at the Ottawa Civic Hospital. Four others were transported to the General campus with non-life-threatening injuries.

> «Those people didn't have a chance. This shouldn't have happened.»
> Neighbour Michelle Murray

Police said the balcony collapsed around 10:50 p.m. on Saturday while six people stood on it. Two people fell to the ground, with the debris from the balcony coming down on them.

Neighbour Michelle Murray, who lives directly across the street, saw the entire incident.

"The kids were standing out on the balcony. I heard them laughing and enjoying themselves," she said yesterday, tears in her eyes. "Then I heard a couple of cracking noises and a snapping sound, and the whole thing (balcony) let go."

Murray ran across the street. "There was a pile of debris about four feet tall and someone said there were people underneath," she said.

With the help of a bystander, she lifted the platform and the railing off one of the victims.

"There was a big pool of blood," she said.

The girls who fell to the ground were standing closest to the railing, Murray said.

"Those people didn't have a chance. This shouldn't have happened."

City engineers were on site to assess the structure, said city spokesman Eric Collard. The building was evacuated Saturday, but residents have since been allowed to return. The balconies have been placed off limits pending further investigation.

Police are continuing the investigation, said Sgt. Danny Digiosia at the scene. Beausoleil Drive was reduced to one lane for much of yesterday.

Family rolling up sleeves for 32nd local Habitat house

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

A year ago, Irene Labelle couldn't see any possible way to become a homeowner.

The 29-year-old single mother of Alyssa, 10, and five-year-old Zoe had trouble enough saving money without having to worry about down payments and high interest rates. As a result, the Ottawa family moved into community housing a few years ago — a situation that Labelle calls less than ideal.

"It's difficult because it's a hard neighbourhood with a lot of violence, poverty and drug use in that area," she said. "It's challenging raising children there."

Then she learned about Habitat for Humanity. And after an involved interview process, her family was selected as the future owners of the 32nd house to be built by the group in the National Capital Region.

While the official groundbreaking for 386 Tillbury Ave. won't be held until tomorrow, Labelle and the children already feel like they've come home.

"I'm most excited about the freedom," she said. "There's a lack of privacy where we're living. The oldest one will have the freedom to walk to and from school. The youngest one is just excited to move."

But first, they must help build the house.

A common misconception about Habitat for Humanity is that people get free houses, said executive director Donna Hicks. In fact, families pay for the house through an interest-free mortgage and their own time and sweat to construct it, alongside volunteers.

next up

» Habitat for Humanity-National Capital Region aims to build two more houses in 2008.

"That's what's exciting about Habitat," said volunteer Roger Short. "With a little help, a bunch of ordinary people can build someone a house."

The recipient must be a working Canadian citizen or a landed immigrant, meet the low-income cut-off and be a family with children. Helping people who need a hand is why Short has assisted in building eight Habitat houses over five years.

"I wanted to do something that had a social significance and that was making a difference somewhere in the community," said Short. "You see the bricks and motor translating to a family's life."

Do It For Dad run set to top $156,000

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

Last year, Ottawa's Henry family started a new Father's Day tradition that doesn't include neckties or golf balls.

They took part in the Do it for Dad run and family walk for prostate cancer research, care and education.

"We thought it was great," said K.B. Henry, who ran the five-kilometre race at Carleton University's Anniversary Park.

"It's something to do for all the families out there."

"It's a nice family event," said father and participant Trevor Henry. "It's a great way to spend Father's Day. We're making this a family event."

stats

» In Canada, one in eight men will get prostate cancer.

About 1,400 runners and walkers raised $156,000 — and counting — for the Ottawa Regional Cancer Foundation's research and patient care programs.

"We're thrilled," said event spokeswoman Lianne Wand.

She said organizers have yet to tally last-minute funds brought in on the day of the event and online pledges.

Prostate Cancer Association Ottawa past chairman Ted Johnston said the services offered to patients in Ottawa are very good and are getting better.

Johnston, 69, was diagnosed with an aggressive tumour 12 years ago and underwent radiation and hormone therapy.

"A lot of men are reluctant to talk about their health," Wand said. "But if you catch the cancer at an early stage, the quality of your life will be increased."

John Dugan, administrative director of the Prostate Cancer Association of Ottawa, said it's important more than just men support the cause.

"The whole family is affected," he said.

Firefighters injured in west-end house blaze

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

Three firefighters were injured after a home in west Ottawa was engulfed in flames yesterday afternoon.

Firefighters attended a home on Whitestone Drive at around 2:30 p.m. and believe the blaze was started in the roof by a lightning strike during a severe thunderstorm.

Firefighters entered the building and pulled the ceiling down from inside in an attempt to access the fire, which was up in the attic, said Chief Ron Gervais.

"As they were ripping the drywall down, it hit (one firefighter) on the helmet," Gervais said.

The injured firefighter was taken to hospital. Two other firefighters suffered minor heat exhaustion and were treated at the scene.

The fire was contained to the attic.

It took 12 fire trucks and 42 firefighters to get the blaze under control by 4 p.m.

The occupants of the home were in the process of moving in and no one was home at the time of the fire.

Damage is estimated at $350,000 to the home and $50,000 to the contents.

Graffitists paint the city — legally

More than 500 attend all-elements hip-hop event

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

TRACEY TONG/METRO OTTAWA

Ottawa graffiti artist Lester Jollymore paints at the underpass at Brewer's Park during the sixth annual House of Paint event yesterday.

Business owners dread it. Ottawa police are cracking down on it. When it's not where it should be, it is vandalism.

But amongst the right circles, and done in a sanctioned space, hundreds of people in the city consider graffiti to be artwork.

More than 500 people attended the sixth annual House of Paint at the Brewer's Park underpass yesterday. In its sixth year, the all-elements hip-hop event — which includes break dancing, graffiti, deejays and emcees — is more popular than ever.

The event attracted almost 50 artists from across Ontario and Quebec, mostly from Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal, said Mike Mesa, graffiti co-ordinator for House of Paint. Many of the artists have been painting for over 10 years, some for nearly 25 years, Mesa said.

"Graffiti has two sides to it — the vandalism side and the artists' side," Mesa said.

Mesa said police and the city have permitted artists to use the wall of the bridge in Brewer's Park as a way to curb other graffiti in the city. They monitor the area on a regular basis.

"I think it's a great idea," said Mesa. "It gives artists who want to display their work the opportunity. There are quite a few artists who don't want to do anything illegal — they just want to paint."

Graffiti is an art that takes years to develop, said Mesa.

"Some people think it looks easy, but they pick up a spray can and find out it's not. It's the only medium I know where you don't touch the surface you work with."

Ottawa's Lester Jollymore has been a graffiti artist for the past seven years. He painted his spaceship design on the wall yesterday.

"It's a really good way to express yourself," Jollymore said.

Two armed men robbed an Innes Road-area convenience store in the city's east end Saturday night.

At 9:10 p.m., two men armed with knives entered a Quickie convenience store at 375 Des Epinettes Ave., where they robbed a clerk of cash and cigarettes.

The first suspect is described as a 20-year-old male of East Indian descent. He was wearing a blue bandana over his face and black pants. The second suspect is described as a 20-year-old black male. He was wearing a brown and black bandana, blue shirt and black pants.

Does pet project hold some merit?

Many Canadian cities allow animals on transit system

ON TRACK

NADINE DOOLITTLE
nadine.doolittle@metronews.ca

Jennifer Marano's transit issue is strangely familiar. The university student writes, "I can no longer participate in the Ottawa Humane Society Foster parent programs because taxi fare is too high ... and our bus system does not allow caged animals on their buses."

Familiar, because wasn't this issue raised last year?

The National Capital Coalition for People and Dogs (now the Responsible Dog Owners of Canada) went to bat for pet-loving commuters, circulating a petition to gauge the level of support and need for animal transit.

In a September 2007 CBC report, OC Transpo director, Alain Mercier, said transit officials had concerns about allergic reactions with other passengers and space restrictions on buses, but allowed that the public transit company was open to discussing the idea again if there was enough support for it.

The petition attracted 400 signatures in two weeks, making the rounds of pet shops and animal clinics and was to be brought to city council early this year.

Marano and others make the point that pets are permitted on public transit in Toronto, Vancouver and Montreal, so why not here?

I researched some of the responses to this idea when it was first proposed in 2007, which ranged from concerns about allergies to visions of dogs running amok on already crowded buses.

As I happened to be in Toronto when I read Marano's e-mail, I eagerly waited for a leashed dog to board the bus to get the inside scoop on how man's best friend behaves himself on a bus.

It was a huge disappointment therefore when not one dog or cat shared the transit system with me for the entire week I was in the Big Smoke.

You'd think out of the 2.46 million passengers using the TTC, I'd run into at least one taking their dog to the vet.

Leashed dogs are permitted on the TTC at the driver's discretion.

The driver can refuse if the bus is too crowded or there are too many pets or the dog is very large. Cats must be in a carrier.

> « Leashed dogs are permitted on the TTC (Toronto Transit Commission) at the driver's discretion. The driver can refuse if the bus is too crowded or there are too many pets or the dog is very large. Cats must be in a carrier. »

In the city of York, pets are allowed to travel only during non-peak periods.

These flexible, enforceable common sense rules seem to work for the transit users in the Canadian cities that have opted to accommodate pets.

How about it, Ottawa?

Tories mixing business, fundraising

Ministers attending party events while on taxpayer-funded trips

When Defence Minister Peter MacKay flew to British Columbia in January, he split his time between government business and two Tory fundraising gigs. Taxpayers footed the bill.

When then-Indian affairs minister Jim Prentice flew to Nova Scotia to meet with provincial chiefs, he headlined a Conservative fundraising dinner in Prince Edward Island. Taxpayers paid for the trip.

fundraising success

» In the first quarter of 2008, the Conservative party has raised $5 million — outstripping both the Liberals and NDP with a dollar ratio of about five to one.

And when Fisheries Minister Loyola Hearn jetted off from a Quebec fisheries forum to attend a government meeting in Manitoba, he guest-starred at a local Tory fundraising banquet.

The federal Conservatives — elected on promises to be squeaky clean — are using government resources to help fill their election war chest.

Torstar News Service easily found 25 examples of Tory ministers mixing fundraising and business by comparing government expense records with Conservative party notices of fundraising events. Each trip typically cost taxpayers several thousand dollars, though complete costs are not disclosed.

Ministers maintain key government business was the reason for each journey. None provided proof of this, but some said the political events were just a happy coincidence.

Nova Scotia mom charged

Faces first-degree murder charge in daughter's death

By ROBYN YOUNG

Bridgewater residents breathed a sigh of relief yesterday after hearing the news Saturday that Penny Boudreau had been charged in the murder of her daughter Karissa.

"I was at a banquet last night and the chairperson got up and announced it," said Annette Chipman who was enjoying a peaceful picnic with a friend along the LaHave River not far from where the young girl's body was found Feb. 9. "Everyone cheered," she said.

The last time Penny Boudreau made a public appearance she tearfully pleaded for the 12-year-old girl to come home. But today she will appear in Bridgewater provincial court to face charges of first-degree murder in Karissa Boudreau's death.

Sgt. Mark Gallagher of the RCMP said police are relieved to have finally had the chance to lay charges in the case.

"As time goes on … there'll be a lot more clarity," he added.

RCMP and the Bridgewater police said they had arrested Boudreau in Halifax on Friday.

"We do not expect anyone else to be charged in this case," said Bridgewater police chief Brent Crowhurst.

Boudreau reported her daughter missing Jan. 27, telling police the last time she saw her was in the parking lot of the Bridgewater Sobeys. She said they had argued and when she returned, she said, Karissa was gone.

Transfusions given to sextuplets within reason: Judge

By ANDREW KING
for Metro Ottawa

A B.C. court has ruled that physicians acted within reason when they infringed upon the rights of two Jehovah's Witness parents by giving blood transfusions to four of their sextuplets born in January, 2007.

The parents objected to the transfusions because of religious beliefs that prohibit such treatment.

"Freedom of religion is not absolute," wrote B.C. Supreme Chief Justice Donald Brenner in his reasons for judgment, released Friday. "While it is difficult to conceive of any limitations on religious beliefs, the same cannot be said of religious practices, notably when they impact on the fundamental rights and freedoms of others."

> « Freedom of religion is not absolute. »
> B.C. Supreme Chief Justice Donald Brenner

All four of the six babies who survived birth were taken into custody of the province under the Child, Family and Community Service Act to have blood transfusions administered.

The lawyer for the parents argued that the transfusions were not necessary and as a result the parents' rights had been breached.

Riyadh plans to lift output to 9.7 million barrels per day in July, United Nations chief Ban Ki-moon said yesterday after meeting Saudi Oil Minister Ali al-Naimi.

Last week, the country was abuzz with the news that Stephen Harper had at last offered an official apology to the Aboriginal people of Canada for the atrocities that occurred in residential schools. Aboriginal leaders were, in general, receptive to the apology but point out the conditions on First Nations reserves are in many cases abysmal and action is needed to improve conditions and salvage what remains of the traditional way of life.

One contributing factor in the erosion of the traditional lifestyle and therefore culture is environmental degradation on reserves. Unlike the residential schools, the deterioration of the environment affects all of us, however, Aboriginal people are at particularly high risk because, traditionally, they depend on local fish and wildlife for a larger part of their diet. In the 1970s, the Grassy Narrows and White Dog reserves made headlines when large numbers of people living on these reserves were found to be suffering from mercury poisoning. This poisoning was traced to high mercury levels in waterways on the reserves, which led to high mercury levels in fish that were consumed by reserve residents.

Unfortunately, the experience of the Grassy Narrows and White Dog reserve residents is not unique. The construction of hydroelectric plants along the St. Lawrence River has led to the contamination of the river and land along the river in Ontario, Quebec, and northern New York state with PCBs.

PCBs are a particular problem for people who eat local fish and wildlife because they bioaccumulate. PCBs are not very soluble in water but are very soluble in fat. Therefore, when PCBs enter a small fish's body, rather than being excreted, they are stored in the small fish's fatty tissues. If a larger fish eats 100 small fish it will then store all the PCBs from the 100 small fish in its fatty tissues.

> «The Akwesasne people had to stop eating local fish and wildlife because of the PCB levels that were found in their bodies and, in doing so, part of their culture was taken away.»

If we then come along and eat 10 large fish, we will then be storing the PCB from 1,000 small fish in our fatty tissues. Because breast milk contains a high percentage of fat, if a mother has PCBs stored in her fat, she will pass them along to her child in breast milk. This is what has happened at the Akwesasne Mohawk Nation. The Akwesasne people had to stop eating local fish and wildlife because of the PCB levels that were found in their bodies and, in doing so, part of their culture was taken away.

These problems persist on reserves to the present day. The Aamjiwnaang First Nation reserve near Sarnia is located in the heart of petrochemical manufacturing country. Its soil and water has been found to be contaminated with dioxins, PCBs, pesticides, and metals. The Aamjiwnaang people have to put up with odours, are unable to swim or fish in their rivers and have high rates of asthma in children. Speaking of children, at the Aamjiwnaang First Nation, two girls were born for every boy and it is hypothesized that endocrine disrupters were to blame for this.

We have highlighted three cases of extreme environmental stresses on First Nations people, however, the problem is pervasive and collectively all Canadians, including Aboriginal people, will need to find a way to solve it.

Turkey battles from two goals down to advance

EURO2008

Turkey pulled off an extraordinary comeback to book a place in the Euro 2008 quarter-finals with a 3-2 win over the Czech Republic yesterday after trailing by two goals with 15 minutes to go.

Turkey's reward for victory is a last-eight clash with Group B winners Croatia in Vienna on Friday.

The night also featured the farewell of co-hosts Switzerland to the tournament with a 2-0 win over Portugal, who had already sealed their place as Group A winners. It was the final match of the Swiss coach Koebi Kuhn who is now retiring.

The Czechs had looked destined for the last eight after moving into a 2-0 lead with a Jan Koller header and Jaroslav Plasil's neatly taken second before Arda Turan gave Turkey what appeared to be a slim lifeline in the 75th minute.

Petr Cech inexplicably dropped the ball at the feet of Nihat Kahveci to present the forward with a simple equalizer three minutes from time and two minutes later Nihat blasted home the winner for Turkey.

Turkey keeper Volkan Demirel was then sent off in stoppage time for a shove with the ball out of play but the Czechs did not have time to mount a comeback.

"I'm so sorry," said Czech captain Tomas Ujfalusi. "We should have won this match." REUTERS

Hartsburg promises new attitude for Sens

Team puts faith in new head coach

The Ottawa Senators appointed Craig Hartsburg as head coach on Friday and he immediately promised to crack down on an under-performing team that was swept out of the first round of the playoffs last season.

Hartsburg

Hartsburg, 48, spent 10 years in the NHL as a defenceman and has been head coach of the Chicago Blackhawks and Anaheim Ducks.

"Early in this whole thing the players will see there's a plan … when the plan is not followed there certainly will be some accountability," he told a news conference.

"It will be black and white. They'll know what's right, what's wrong. They'll know the line not to cross," said Hartsburg, who was most recently head coach of the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds in the Ontario Hockey League.

Ottawa reached the Stanley Cup final in the 2006-2007 season, losing in five games to the Ducks. Last season they started off at a record pace but slumped so badly that head coach John Paddock was fired in February. REUTERS

YWCA honours Deepa Mehta

Awards recognize contributions of Canadian women

Courage, dedication and the drive to make the lives of women around the world better — all are qualities possessed and demonstrated by filmmaker Deepa Mehta and seven other Canadian Women of Distinction.

The world-renowned filmmaker, famous for her soul-wrenching films documenting oppression of women and political turmoil in her native land of India, was the recipient of the recent President's Award at the 28th annual YWCA Women of Distinction Awards in Toronto.

Draped in an elegant, traditional gown that billowed playfully in the artificial breeze, Mehta called the award "a great honour" and praised the city that has become her adopted home for the past 30 years.

> « What's important for me is for women to realize they have a voice — for all women to realize they have validity. »
> Deepa Mehta

"I've spent half my life in Toronto — I feel that it is my city," Mehta said.

Mehta said what drives her is to help women understand they don't have to be powerless in their own lives.

"What's important for me is for women to realize they have a voice — for all women to realize they have validity," Mehta said.

Dads long for quality time

Many fathers fear work is causing them to miss out

By RAFAEL BRUSILOW
for Metro Ottawa

Many working dads talk about wanting to spend more time with their families, but how many actually trade in work hours for some quality time?

Findings from a recent Workopolis Dads in the Workplace Poll show that at least one-in-five fathers fear time away from home is making them miss out on some of their families' biggest moments.

On the other hand, 40 per cent of the dads surveyed also report being able to manage all home duties adequately compared to only 5 per cent of moms, suggesting that while many working dads not only forget to be home — they perhaps forget to help out at home too.

"I think perhaps fathers do delude themselves into thinking there isn't as much to do at home, and I suspect it's an issue that sweeps across income areas," said Patrick Sullivan, president of the popular online job portal Workopolis, which released the study. Sullivan suggests working dads sometimes forget how important time with the family is and neglect to make room for it.

"We all tend to spend more time working than we do with our families. You need to take that time for your family — it's important," he said.

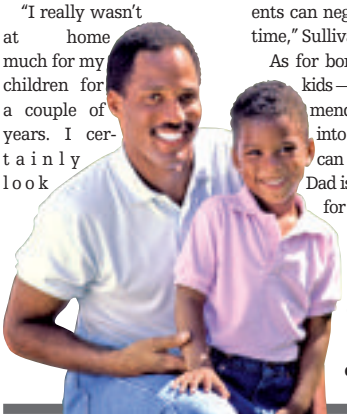
Sullivan, 49 and himself a father of two, says past time he spent away from his family wasn't always worth it — despite how successful he has been.

"I really wasn't at home much for my children for a couple of years. I certainly look back now and regret that. I think if I had more balance in my life at that time, I don't think it would have adversely affected my career that much and it would have benefited my family greatly," Sullivan said.

Family time, just like business meetings and project deadlines, needs to be scheduled. Plan ahead for important events like recitals and give yourself reminders.

"Set alarms, don't turn on the TV right when you get home and be at the dinner table. All too often we as parents can neglect that special time," Sullivan said.

As for bonding with your kids — Sullivan recommends bringing them into the office so they can understand why Dad is away providing for them.



A new study indicates that many working dads feel they're missing out on their kids' childhood due to work.

Hedley wins big at MuchMusic Video Awards

By BRIAN COULTON
for Metro Ottawa

FRED THORNHILL/REUTERS

Rihanna performs at the MuchMusic Video awards last night.

Thousands of fans braved heavy rain to fill the streets surrounding the red carpet at the 2008 MuchMusic Video Award in Toronto last night.

Maybe it was the presence of Umbrella songstress Rihanna or that of Rainn Wilson, a.k.a. The Office's Dwight Schrute, but the weather failed to deter musicians and celebrities from attending the annual music video awards show.

Hedley was the night's big victor, with a total of four wins. The B.C.-based quartet picked up trophies for Best Video and Best Director for For The Nights I Can't Remember and honours for Best Cinematography and MuchLOUD Best Rock Video for She's So Sorry.

Barbados-born R&B star Rihanna also fared well, taking home awards for Best International Video Artist for Don't Stop The Music and MuchMusic.com Most Watched Video for Umbrella. References to the coincidence of her hit single and the first-ever red carpet rain-out of the ceremony were nearly unavoidable.

Despite the poor weather, illScarlett illuminated the roof of the MuchMusic headquarters. The reggae-ska-rock band performed outdoors against a light show spectacle atop the Toronto building.

But the most anticipated act of the night was New Kids On The Block. The reunited 1990s boy band made its first televised Canadian performance since reforming; a sight anticipated by many red carpet dwellers.

And while boy bands from illScarlett, Simple Plan, Hedley and New Kids were in full force, girl power didn't fail to find its place at Much.

An appearance by former Sporty Spice Girl, British singer Melanie C, and a performance by the less dressed Pussycat Doll prodigy, Girlicious, represented the evolution of women in pop music over the past 10 years.

Coldplay disc sells briskly in U.K.

MUSIC Coldplay sold 125,000 copies of its new album on the first day of release in Britain, a solid tally industry experts say should be music to the band's ears and those of its ailing record label, EMI.

Viva La Vida or Death And All His Friends now looks certain to top the weekend album chart, according to the Official Charts Company that tracks record sales, even though it was released on Thursday rather than at the start of the week. "(These) sales figures in the U.K. are the first indication of how the album will be received, and EMI will be very pleased," said the charts company managing director Martin Talbot.

How colour palettes can change your mood

COLIN & JUSTIN'S INTERIOR DIVINE

Did you know that paint choices can have a serious impact on mood? Well, if colour psychologists are to be believed, choosing the right tone will help you balance emotions and lead a fuller life. Here's the inside scoop on how to choose a palette that's right for you:

BLUE: Blue aids relaxation and promotes a calm, spiritual feel. Use it in bedrooms to soothe, in kids' rooms to focus the mind and in bathrooms to promote a feeling of well-being. It's also considered an appetite suppressant — we kid you not! — maybe it could be the perfect choice in the kitchen if you're counting calories!

RED: If a rise in sexual response is what you're after then make red your colour of choice. But be careful — you'll find a little goes a long way. Use as an accent rather than your dominant colour. Deep reds promote appetite and conversation, making them great for dining rooms, whereas orange-red and brown-red shades (like terracotta and brick) are cozy, warm and stimulating.

YELLOW: The colour of sun, yellow will make you happy and has been shown to increase metabolism. But it's also been noted that people lose their tempers and babies cry more often in yellow rooms. So perhaps it's not ideal (in brighter tones anyway) in a nursery! Great for kitchens and bathrooms, especially teamed with white.

GREEN: The colour of the forest, green calms, relaxes and has a healing effect. What's more, it's said to relieve depression and anxiety. But remember — don't use too dark a tone, or your home will end up feeling like the local library. Sage, olive and lime are currently very popular and even pastels are making a comeback. You heard it here first!

PURPLE: Signifying opulence and spirituality, purple is seriously hedonistic. From sexy aubergine to soft lavender, and mauve to sophisticated lilac, there's a tone for everyone.

Team with white, grey and silver, add a feature wall of dramatic lavender wallpaper or dot your home with deep purple cushions and throws as an introduction to this thoroughly regal tone.

GREYS/BLACK: Storm clouds and rainy days — the perfect choice for grumpy teenagers? Or a mood board inspired by city suits, military precision and the little black dress? We love this palette and find it timeless, elegant and sophisticated. But better still —monochrome is reckoned to increase productivity in the home office! Count us in for the executive lounge.

PINK: Pink used to be considered girly but, thanks to the bright shirts of smart businessmen (at least those with a sense of fun) it's now also adored by blokes.

Colour scientists often advocate pink for use in prisons (to subdue aggressive behaviour) so it's sure to bring harmony to your home. But go easy, or run the risk of turning your home into a Dolly Parton-inspired marshmallow nightmare.

TALES FROM THE DOUBLEKNIT WASTELAND: Almost two weeks ago, CBS' new summer drama Swingtown debuted to great numbers — 8.6 million viewers, according to the Hollywood Reporter, even though the stiffest competition it was up against that night, in the bleary aftermath of an especially unimpressive primetime season, was a horror anthology on NBC.

Even debuting a sexy drama about spouse-swapping suburbanites in the summer of the U.S. Bicentennial in the first flush of summer has an indelibly '70s feel about it, and I was there, baby, a TV junkie in my early teens, glued to the half-dozen channels our backyard antenna pulled in for some clues to the increasingly confusing world around me. There are a lot of things Swingtown gets right, and a lot it gets wrong, but it's already working with a handicap as the near-definitive retrospective take on the decade has already been made — Ang Lee's 1997 movie version of Rick Moody's novel The Ice Storm.

There's a distinct network cheesiness to Swingtown that actually gives it a rather mind-blowing approximation of what Moody's novel might have been like if it were a '70s TV series and not a book. Thirty years ago, CBS would have been obliged to be a lot more moralistic in its treatment of the Millers, Bruce and Susan, who haul themselves a couple of notches up the middle-class ladder and find themselves in the well-upholstered lap of the sexual revolution, courtesy of their sexy new neighbours, Tom and Trina Decker, aided by Trina's collection of bathing suits and Tom's very suggestive Harry Reems moustache.

Today, however, CBS is playing catch-up with the Joneses — Showcase, FX, HBO and AMC, with their critically-acclaimed hour-long dramas, and they're determined to get a piece of that audience, broheem. They've come out swinging — pun intended — but there are a lot of wrong notes. Everything moves too fast, for one — episode one ends with the Millers already trailing the Deckers into the bedroom at their 4th of July party, overcoming their initial misgivings about this violation of their marriage vows without much of a backwards glance. The pacing feels a bit frog-marched, and some of the characterizations — especially Miriam Shor as Janet Thompson, Susan's uptight soon-to-be-former-best friend — far too tidy.

They also treat us to Fleetwood Mac's Go Your Own Way blaring from a radio at a teenage beach party, when the single wouldn't be released until that Christmas. The choice of nearly wall-to-wall soundtrack tunes — Captain & Tennille, Bowie, Chicago, Rita Coolidge — also feels a bit obvious, and I wonder if procuring the rights for all of this Top 40 tunage will either make the DVD box set too pricey, or prompt the last-minute substitution of cheesy cover versions.

One thing they got right, at least, is that junior high girls were tough — far tougher than the boys, and I have the mental scars to prove it.

Jackson may turn to Las Vegas act

MUSIC Michael Jackson may relaunch his career as a Las Vegas act, thanks to the private equity group that recently bought the loan on his Neverland Ranch in California to help the pop star avert foreclosure.

Jackson

The investment firm Colony Capital is discussing with Jackson various repayment options for the $23-million US debt, including a possible long-term engagement as the resident performer of a Vegas casino or nightclub, a source familiar with the talks said recently.

Bulletproof Cruise-ing

Tom Cruise's most important mission is keeping his family safe. According to intouchweekly.com, the 45-year-old superstar has a fleet of expensive cars and all of them are equipped with bulletproof windows. "It sounds like he's taken a page out of one of his action movies," explains an insider. "Tom's vehicles look perfectly normal, but in reality they are more like armored trucks." All of Tom's chauffeurs are professionally trained drivers, says the insider, so they can get him out of traffic problems and protect him from possible trouble. Still, he often prefers to drive his wife, Katie Holmes, and his three children himself. "Tom is a car nut," the insider adds.

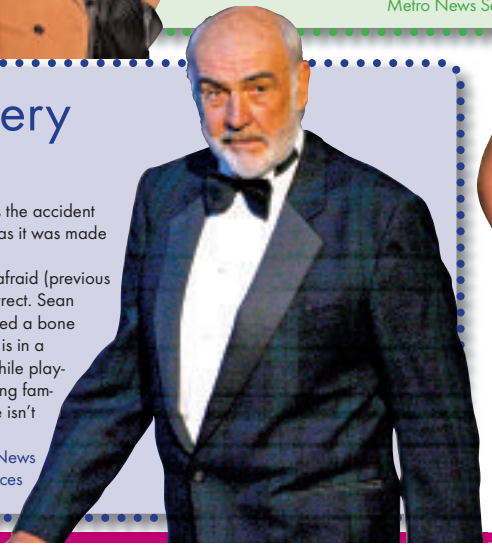
Rep denies Connery is in hospital



A representative for former James Bond star Sir Sean Connery has denied the actor is in hospital nursing a fractured ankle – revealing the star is only suffering from a minor shoulder injury.

The 77-year-old reportedly fell and injured himself during a game of golf in Mount Kisco, New York on Friday and was subsequently admitted to Northern Westchester Hospital for treatment.

But Connery's spokeswoman Nancy Seltzer says the accident was not as serious as it was made out to be.

She said: "I'm afraid (previous reports are) not correct. Sean Connery has chipped a bone in his shoulder and is in a sling. He tripped while playing golf and is visiting family in New York. He isn't in hospital."

The Keys to motherhood?

Alicia Keys wants to adopt. According to femalefirst.co.uk, the singer admires Angelina Jolie for adopting son Maddox from Cambodia, Zahara from Ethiopia and Pax from Vietnam and is considering following in her footsteps.

Keys, 27, said: "I think adoption is important to consider. That is what I really admire about Angelina Jolie. I think it's beautiful the way she embraces the children of the world.

"We are all one. We're not as separate as we sometimes think. So I possibly would adopt, when I'm more in the motherhood stage of my life."

Alicia also says she has always loved spending time with children and believes it is important to encourage their ideas and creative sides.

She added: "I've always loved kids. Kids are so important. It's important to nurture and spend time with them and listen to them."
